

SIXTEEN CHARGES BY MRS. GOULD

Husband Appeals for Specific Accusation in Her Suit for Divorce.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Frank J. Gould has appealed to Justice Giegarich in the supreme court to order his wife to be more specific in the complaint in her suit for an absolute divorce. The tilt between the opposing lawyers brought out the fact that in her amended bill, Mrs. Gould makes sixteen distinct charges against her husband, and that in a number of instances the names of the women are mentioned.

In objecting to Mr. Gould's appeal, Henry L. Sprague, for Mrs. Gould, contended that the complaint had been made as specific as could be required by law. He said, however, that Mrs. Gould would make the count more specific.

The name of this woman, however, was not made public in court, but is supposed to be given in Mrs. Gould's amended complaint.

Justice Giegarich reserved decision on the appeal.

GOVERNMENT PAYS STANDARD OIL $3,356

Refunds for Stamps, After Deciding That Money Could Not Be Applied to Big Fine.

The Standard Oil Company, of New York, William Rockefeller, president, has just received from Uncle Sam a Treasury warrant for $3,356.10, this amount being a refund for stamps used on export manifests between July 1, 1898, and June 30, 1901. But it required a decision of the Comptroller of the Treasury before the claim of the Standard Oil Company was paid.

The hold-up of the claim was due to the action of the Auditor of the Treasury Department, who seemed anxious to apply the three thousand and odd dollars as part payment of the $23,000,000 fine which was imposed by United States Judge Landis, of the northern district of Illinois, against the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana.

The claim for the refund of the stamp taxes was made by William G. Rockefeller, treasurer of the Standard Oil Company, of New York, December 27, of last year, and the claim was allowed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, J. C. Carter, but it failed to receive the approval of the auditor for the Treasury Department.

FISHERIES CONGRESS CLOSES ITS SESSION

Delegates Are Awarded Prizes.
Next Meeting to Be Held in Rome in 1911.

The first International Fisheries Congress held in the United States adjourned last night, after a week of scientific discussion, in order to inspect the Atlantic coast fishing hatcheries. The final function was the formal banquet at the Raleigh hotel at which the foreign delegates and their wives were the guests of the congress.

Awards on the ten subjects for which $150 in gold was offered, were made by the committee. The eight $50 prizes were given to the following: Dwight Franklin, New York; F. A. Lucas and Roy A. Miner, jointly, of New York; Prof. J. Reighard, University of Michigan; Dr. H. P. Moore, Washington; Dr. A. D. Mead, Providence, R. I.; Dr. H. P. Moore, Washington, on a second paper; Prof. J. Reighard, Michigan, on a second paper; and to J. J. Coleman, New York. The prize of $250 also went to Dr. A. D. Mead, of the Rhode Island Fish Commission, and that of $150 to Charles G. Atkins, of Providence, R. I.

Many important resolutions were passed that interested the fish men. But no action was taken to establish federal control of fisheries as anticipated. The congress adjourned to meet in Rome, Italy, in 1911.

NEW CLUB TO HOLD OPEN MASS MEETING

An open mass meeting will be held in the library building at Chevy Chase under the auspices of the Good Government Club tonight at 8 o'clock. William E. Andrews, auditor for the Treasury Department, will speak on the issues of the campaign, paying particular attention to the bank guarantee plank of the Democratic platform.

The Good Government Club is but a day old. It was organized at Chevy Chase last night. Its object is the furtherance of good government, and the club believes that the best interests of sound government will be served by the election of Taft and Sherman. John L. Weaver was elected president; William E. Andrews, Allen D. Albert, Jr., active vice presidents, and Arthur W. Glennan, secretary and treasurer.

TRIPS TO NORFOLK POPULAR AS EVER

In spite of the fact that the last days of summer are quickly passing there seems to be no abatement in the popularity of the excursions to Old Point Comfort under the auspices of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company. Bookings continue with the regularity of the summer season, and those who are taking advantage of the combined rates for the trip and accommodations at Old Point Comfort are thoroughly enjoying the outing.

These excursions are given Fridays and Saturdays, the boats leaving at 6:30 p. m. and returning to Washington Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday morning, according to the length of time for which the ticket is purchased. Rooms and meals at the Chamberlin are furnished with the price of the ticket.

INDIGNANT.

"My dear, I have something awful to tell you. That Mr. Parker, with whom you are carrying on such a mad affair, is a married man."

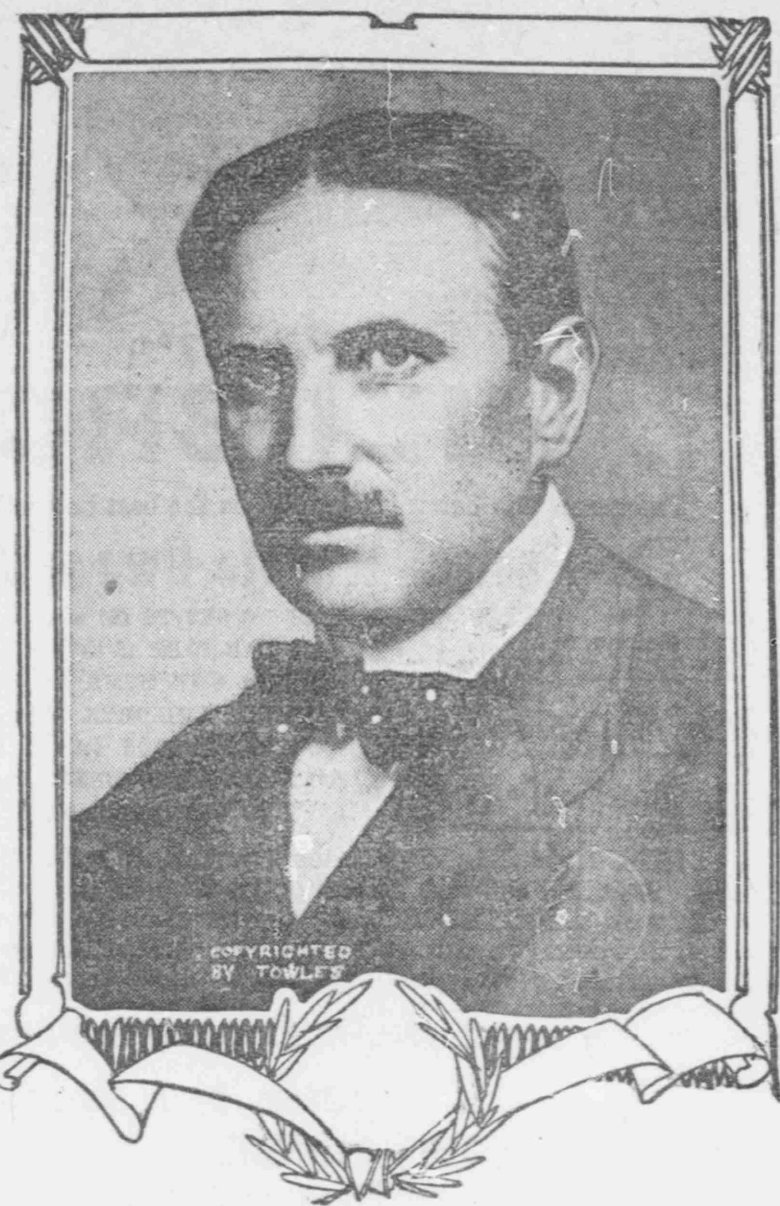

"Nothing of the kind. His wife has gone to the country for the summer."—Cleveland Leader.

ENEMY OF WHITE PLAGUE

DR. JOHN S. FULTON,

Washington Man, Whose Life Is Wrapped Up In the War On Tuberculosis, and Whose Labor Facilitated Work of Congress Now in Session.

One of the men who hewed wood and carried water to make the International Congress on Tuberculosis at Washington a success, was Dr. John S. Fulton, who has been identified with the fight on tuberculosis for the past ten years. Long before many of the distinguished physicians abroad had begun to prepare the scientific papers which they will read the coming week in the different sections, Dr. Fulton was busily engaged on the details so essential to the success of such a world-wide gathering. The results of his painstaking work become apparent every day in the ease with which the machinery of the congress is run. Dr. Fulton is prominent as an authority on public hygiene. It is his life work. For ten years he was secretary of the State board of health of Maryland, and inaugurated many reforms which are now in operation in the health regulations of that State. Early in his work he recognized the terrible havoc which the dread disease was working and made a deep study of the subject. He possesses an unusually pleasant personality, one that has made him thousands of friends in all parts of the United States.

He was born in Ohio forty-eight years ago, but when a child his parents removed to Maryland, and he has been identified with the interests of the Eastern Shore all his life. He graduated from St. John's College, Annapolis, and made a remarkable record by completing his course in the medical school of the University of Maryland before his twenty-first birthday, when most young men are barely getting through the academic department of a college.

Girl Who Goes Into Long Trance Declares She Saw Her Dead Father In a "Beautiful Heaven" With Deity

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—After awakening from what appeared to be the sleep of death, Ethel Powell, of Brooklyn, declared she had been in heaven for forty-eight hours and had seen the Deity and her dead father and brother.

When she was taken ill ten days ago, the family physician pronounced her case one of spinal meningitis. Her heart became weak and she began to waste away. The physician could do little for her, for Ethel was brooding over the loss of her father and little brother, Charlie.

The girl brightened up a week ago, and last Sunday called her mother to her bedside where the two prayed together. About 10 o'clock that night Ethel fell into what appeared to be a peaceful sleep. Her mother heard the girl talking to herself. With her hands clasped, Ethel would murmur the word "beautiful," and her eyes would light up as though she had seen some beautiful vision. Finally the girl became as still as death. She remained in that condition for hours, her eyes fixed on the ceiling. Although her mother spoke to her repeatedly, she made no answer.

Finally, at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, forty-two hours after she fell into what looked like death sleep, Ethel's eyes moved and she spoke.

"Oh, mamma, I have been to heaven," were her first words. "What a beautiful place. Why did they bring me back? It was all so bright and lovely up there and everybody so happy."

Regarding strength, the girl told her mother a remarkable story. She described a beautiful gate opened to her and angels carrying her through space until she suddenly saw God before her. "God had a book, but he told me it was not my time yet," said Ethel. "I saw papa and little Charlie, both happy and strong. He told me it was not time for me to stay in heaven. It was so beautiful that I did not want to come back. I pleaded, but I suppose God wanted me to stay on earth and comfort you, mamma, and that is the reason I came back. But I must go back for there is no trouble in heaven; all happiness and no pain."

RAILROADS DEMAND MORE PAY FOR MAIL

Charging that the railroads of the country are not being adequately paid for transporting the United States mails, a committee representing several of the largest railroad systems in the country called on Postmaster General Meyer today and submitted their grievances in writing.

The railroad systems represented were the Rock Island, Santa Fe, Missouri Pacific and Wabash. The members of the party were Guy Adams, J. P. Lindsay, H. E. Mack, and G. B. Lindsay.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE AGAINST RICH MAN

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Sept. 26.—Suit for divorce has been filed by Mrs. Bradley against John H. Bradley, son of the late William Bradley, one of Dubuque's wealthiest citizens. She gives statutory reasons and excessive drinking as reasons for her action.

Permanent alimony of $100.00 and the custody of three minor children are asked, as well as temporary alimony of $30 a month and $5.00 to defray the expenses of the suit.

NO WONDER.

Old Beauties In New Gowns

How the maids and matrons of "long ago" would look in gowns of modern mode interestingly portrayed by pen and pictures. Can you imagine the stately Duchess of Devonshire in a "Sheath," or Louise of Prussia promenading in a Paris Street Costume? Even the proud Marie Antoinette (Louis XVI's ill-fated Queen) is made to don present day garb. No woman will want to miss this treat in tomorrow's illustrated Magazine Section of The Sunday TIMES.

Successful Wash- ington Actresses Past, Present, and Future

An article of especial interest to every Washingtonian who takes pride in the conquests of his or her townspeople. Footlight favorites of other days that called Washington home. Pretty girls who are now reaping the rewards of their success. Others who are striving for popular recognition. Did you know that Washington has contributed more daughters, in proportion to its size, to the stage who have attained national prominence than any other city in the United States. You will want to read this article in tomorrow's Magazine Section of The SUNDAY TIMES.

Why Virginia Harned Espoused Vaudeville

This charming actress tells in a characteristic way to THE TIMES the secret of why she has "forsaken Shakespeare for the 'continuous' for just one season." It being a secret, we will tell you just what she said, confidentially, in the Magazine Section of tomorrow's Sunday TIMES.

The origin of "Hands Up;" A Brother Who Weds His Sister by Mistake; Cutting the World's Largest Diamond Into Three Pieces; Uncle Sam's Herculean Task of Sweeping the Ocean Free of Derelicts; an unusually attractive article on the New Evening Gowns, and another session with the Man With the Master Mind in His Marvelous Method of Solving Criminal Mysteries by a System of Telepatho-Deductions, are some gleamings from a very interesting issue of

Tomorrow's Magazine Section

Five sections in all constitute Washington's Great Sunday Newspaper. Especially noteworthy is the handling of news of current events with the aid of illustrations, the clear and concise manner in which Sports of all sorts are dwelt upon, the great scope covered by news of Society, the Stage, and Personal Chat, and that weekly laugh-provoker, the Comic Section, in colors, of

THE SUNDAY TIMES

The paper you enjoy every afternoon and evening throughout the week is enlarged and elaborated on to an even greater extent than the price indicates in The Sunday TIMES.
